FASHION, BEAUTY & LIFESTYLE BLOG

BETHANIE CLARKE

Bethanie is an avid writer having previously written articles for The Guardian and for HuffPost, going on to join HuffPost on a contributor level alongside continuing her blog Practically Pint Sized.

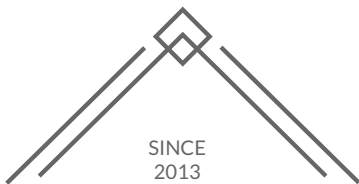

Outside of writing Bethanie is studying a degree in Law, a subject which she is passionate about; particularly criminal law.

THE BLOG

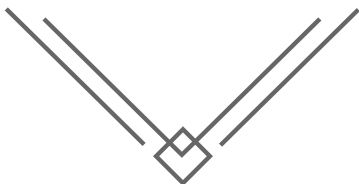

Started in 2013 originally branded 'The Musings of a Teenage Drama Queen' Practically Pint Sized was originally a lifestyle blog intended to house the political rants & everyday thoughts of a 17 year old Sixth Form student.

Since then the blog has undergone re-branding to symbolise both the aging of its readers and writer. As of 2018 Practically Pint Sized is a fashion, lifestyle and beauty blog.

Practically Pint Sized has also transformed into an online 'safe space' providing mental health advocacy by documenting the struggles of living life with a mental illness, offering reader the opportunity to both relate to the content and discuss their struggles in a monitored, safe environment.
